

I See An Elephant In The Sky

Written by Kim Mitzo Thompson, Karen Mitzo Hilderbrand.
Music arranged by Hal Wright.
© 1999 Twin Sisters IP, LLC. All Rights Reserved.

As I lay upon my back,
I gaze up in the sky. It's full of puffy, fluffy clouds that seem to float on

by.

Each looks just like a picture, so I
name each one and say,

"I think I see my uncle's face, or maybe it's Aunt May's."

I see an elephant in the sky.

I see a monkey floating by.

I see a giant teddy bear that's sitting in a rocking chair.

I like to lay in soft, green grass and feel the gentle breeze.

I like to feel the warm sun, although it makes me sneeze.

I make-believe I see a play that appears up in the sky.

The clouds move as each scene changes right before my eyes.

I see an elephant in the sky.

I see a caterpillar crawling by.

I see a piece of Swiss cheese.

Could I have one bite, please?

The wind is blowing and it seems to quickly pick up speed.

My pictures are becoming dark,
and now they're leaving me.

The sun has seemed to disappear;
the clouds are whirling 'round.

I'll just take one more look above
before I am home bound.

I see an elephant in the sky. I see an octopus swimming by. I see a scary rattlesnake that seems to have a bellyache!

I see an elephant in the sky. I see a frog that's hopping by. I see my mom; she's calling me. With speed,
I run home quickly!